SCHOOL TO DEDICATE NEW ATHLETIC FIELD

Jefferson Union high school will formally dedicate its athletic field on Columbus day.

This event will also be the official opening of the football season between the high schools comprising the Peninsula Athletic League—San Jose, Palo Alto, Redwood City, San Mateo, Burlingame, Pescadero, Half Moon Bay, South San Francisco, and Jefferson Union high school.

Jefferson's opponent in this first game will be the Burlingame high school, whose team tied for the championship of the league last year. So the Jefferson boys have undertaken a real contract. They will be much lighter than their opponents, but they expect to make up in speed what they lack in weight. It will be a contest well worth seeing. The game will be called at 3 p. m.

Between halves, two teams of girls from Jefferson's physical education department will occupy the field and play a game of soccer football. This, too, will be worth seeing, for the girls are preparing for the occasion with as great enthusiasm as the boys are preparing for their event.

Principal James Ferguson says he expects a record crowd to be present on this occasion. Jefferson Union high school has an athletic field that is the envy of every team that has seen it. It is equal to the best found anywhere in the state, and the people of the Jefferson Union high school district have a right to be proud of it. It is a community asset of tremendous value, for by its use the boys and girls of the district will be developed into a finer and stronger type of men and women.

Every citizen of the district should attend the dedication of the athletic field on Columbus day, not only to see the football game, but to see what a splendid athletic field the high school board of education has provided for the physical education department of the school.

COMPANY 4 MEMBERS STAGE ANNUAL PARTY

Last Saturday night the members of Company No. 4, Daly City Volunteer Fire Department, staged their annual party, in honor of their new triple combination apparatus.

They had as their guests of honor, in addition to their seventeen members, Mayor H. H. Smith, Councilmen O'Rourke, Sundermann and Bodien, Fire Commissioners Geo. Augustien, president, Louis Schenk, Twesten and P. Selmi, and Chief Kennedy and Assistant Chief F. Hansen.

The guests and members were entertained until 10 o'clock, when a splendid feed, consisting of all the best "eatables and drinkables" to be obtained in Daly City, was served by the entertainment committee, consisting of Assistant Chief Chesney, Comrades Vireno, Fonseca, Foppiano and Captain Cuneo.

After partaking of the repast, Captain Cuneo, who was toastmaster, called upon the guests and members, and some very interesting and instructive remarks were listened to and enjoyed by all those present.

Later, while the black coffee and cigars were being enjoyed, the gathering was entertained by some bedtime stories, and it is understood that "Auld Lang Syne" was sung at 2 a. m.

LOCAL EAGLES ADDING TO THE MEMBERSHIP ROLL

Colma-Vista Grande Aerie No. 1848, Fraternal Order of Eagles, under the leadership of Worthy President Wm. Bolger, is having a wonderful year. Several big class initiations have been held, increasing the Aerie's membership to its highest mark.

Under the direction of the booster committee, a fine big class was initiated on Saturday evening, September 22, in the Daly City Auditorium.

Thirty-six new members became a part of the organization, the degree work being put on by the presiding officers, assisted by California's state champion drill team from Golden Gate Aerie No. 61. After the initiation, refreshments were served in Eagles Hall, and many of the brothers were called upon for a few remarks

Among the visitors present were: From Golden Gate Aerie No. 61, State Chaplain George Duddy, Vice-President Thomas Keating, Worthy Chaplain Riddle, Past President Thomas Keating, Past President Robert Riiey and Secretary Joseph Fassler. From Redwood City Aerie, Past President Miles Sharkey and Past President Frank Shottler.

During the banquet entertainment was furnished by Thomas Burke, of Golden Gate Aerie No. 61, at the piano, with songs by Ernest Foss, Joseph Nelson and Ed Heim, from Colma-Vista Grande Aerie.

The entire program was a great success, and was thoroughly enjoyed.

SEATS DELIVERED FOR DALY CITY'S THEATRE

The new Daly City Theatre is rapidly being converted into the garden form which it will take upon its completion some time before the end of October.

Approximately 1,250 heavily upholstered, leather-covered seats arrived this week and will be installed as soon as the decorators' scaffolding has been taken down. Floors are in, both the wood of the main auditorium and the tile of the lobby.

According to Edward B. Baron and C. A. Nathan, the seating arrangement will provide more room for their patrons, greater comfort and unusually wide aisles.

So realistic is the garden plan of the theatre, that patrons seated in the main auditorium will seem to gaze out upon beautiful exterior scenes through eighteen openings in a Spanish wall which encircles the interior of the theatre. Garden furniture will be used in the lobby, with warm colors and striped designs predominating. A fountain will occupy the center of the rotunda.

All seats are on one floor. There is no balcony. The main lobby has a lofty ceiling, with a sky and cloud effect similar to that employed in the auditorium proper. In fact, the wall which encircles the theatre, also forms the partition between the foyer and the audience.

Stores share the Mission street frontage with the theatre entrance and offices occupy the second story. The theatre is "L" shaped in construction, with the auditorium set back from Mission street, although the building extends out to Flournoy street at the stage end.

HUNTERS ENTERTAIN GUN CLUB MEMBERS

A stag party was given at Masonic Hall last Saturday evening by the Crocker Gun Club, those who were fortunate enough to be present enjoying a splendid musical program, some excellent addresses and a most satisfying venison dinner. The venison for the occasion was furnished by James Syme and his son Thomas, who secured the deer on a recent hunt in Humboldt county. The dinner was prepared and served by Peter Pavlos.

The hall was beatuifully decorated for the occasion, representing a forest scene, a number of deer heads playing a prominent part in the decoration.

During the evening solos were rendered by Dick Hodge, Robert Morris, Rick Reed, William Moore and Edgmont Rudolph. James Stevenson acted as accompanist. Duets were rendered by Tom Richards and George Johns, and Robert Morris and William Moore.

JEFFERSON HIGH P. T. A. HOLDS MONTHLY MEETING

The regular monthly meeting of the Jefferson Union high school P. T. A. was held on Thursday, September 27, with a good attendance. The meeting was called to order by President Mrs. Putney, after which Mr. Ferguson gave a very interesting talk, followed by a short talk by Mr. Bentley, president of the school board. After the business of the evening a very pleasant social hour, with dainty refreshments, was enjoyed.

The P. T. A. will be host at a teachers' reception next Wednesday, October 10, at 8 o'clock, at thehigh school. A good program has been prepared by the committee in charge. The parents of all students of the high school, and all members of the faculty, are cordially invited to attend. This will afford you an opportunity to become better acquainted with the teachers and the members of the school board, and to gain a better understanding of the school to which you send your child.

It is co-operation that builds; and only by co-operation can we build our school up so we will be proud to have it pointed out not only as a thing of material beauty, but as morally clean.

OCTOBER TO BE FAIR SAYS FATHER RICARD

The month of October will be generally fair, according to the forecast of Father Ricard, "padre of the rains." His October forecast is for a slight amount of rain, some cloudiness and for the most part fair weather. He predicts a rain storm in parts of this state for October 21, 22, 23 and 24. There is to be considerable fog in the mornings along the entire coast. The latter part of October and November 1 may witness rains, Father Ricard announces.

FIRE COMMISSIONERS IN MONTHLY SESSION

The Fire Commissioners held their regular monthly meeting last Monday night in the City Hall. Many matters of importance to the fire department were taken up.

It was recommended to the Councilmen that they purchase the fire truck owned by Company No. 4, also that they purchase an electric driven siren for Company No. 2 truck.

Company No. 2 was ordered to disposes of the old chassis, the money realized to be turned into Company No. 2 treasury.

A number of bills were ordered paid out of the commissioners' fund, and the chairman was authorized to purchase nine turnout coats, two for each fire truck and one for Chief Kennedy.

Assistant Chief Chesney spoke on the fire drill held by Companies No. 4 and No. 5 on Sunday, September 23, complimenting the members on the way they handled both the apparatus and ladders.

Assistant Chief Hansen notified his Companies that he would have them out for drill in a short time.

Chief Kennedy presented the fire department with one of the most up-to-date nozzles now on the market and ordered it placed on Company No. 4 truck. The nozzle was won by Chief Kennedy at the convention of the Pacific Coast Fire Chiefs, held in Fresno last year.

MRS. ANGELINA PANELLA DIES AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS

It was with much sorrow that the many friends of Mrs. Angelina Panella, of 545 Winchester street, learned of her sudden death last Sunday night.

Mrs. Panella attended mass on Sunday morning at St. Maximus church, and on Sunday afternoon entertained at a family dinner at her home, in the evening attending church again. On her way home she stopped in a grocery store on Mission street to make a purchase, where she was suddenly taken ill, and it was decided to send her as speedily as possible to a San Francisco hospital, where she passed away the same evening.

Mrs. Angelina Panella was the beloved wife of Joseph Panella and the loving mother of Daniel, Michael, William, Genevieve and Rose Panella and Mrs. Ernest Frazee. She was a native of Italy.

The funeral was held on Wednesday morning, when a requiem high mass was celebrated at St. Maximus church for the repose of her soul, at 9 a. m. Interment was at Holy Cross cemetery.

ENJOYS PARTY IN HONOR OF TWELFTH BIRTHDAY

Miss Helen Knoll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Knoll, of 56 Goethe street, was guest of honor at a birthday party last Wednesday afternoon, in honor of her twelfth birthday. The afternoon was spent in playing games and dancing. The living and dining rooms were prettily decorated in yellow and pink crepe paper and the table was very attractive with its many colored candy baskets, favors and a huge birthday cake with its twelve candles. Helen received many lovely gifts from her little friends who came to help her celebrate her birthday.

The guests present were: Delphine Gregoire, Edith Cochrane, Eleanor Boardman, Helen Waite, Frances Lane, Lillian Cavenaro, Mary Moran, Dorothy Moran, Patricia Kelly, Gene Benner, Margaret Ballard, Dorothy Imsick, Anna Regan, Virginia Imsick, Alice Bodeker, Elsie Bodeker, Cora Torris, Romona Torris, Lois Gohl, Florence Christen, Rita Fisher, Rose Moran, Gladys Elbert, Gladys Oakley, Janet Bernardi, Theresa Campagno, Yolanda Barsuglia, Helen Reinhart, Mildred Mansfelt and Marion Masfelt.

REDUCTION IN FIRE INSURANCE RATES

The fire insurance brokers and the officials of Daly City have in the last week been notified of readjustments, and in many cases substantial reductions in the fire insurance rates.

This change in rates and reductions are directly due to the months of labor given this subject by a committee consisting of the City Councilmen, the Board of Fire Commissioners, the local fire insurance brokers, and Fire Chief Kennedy.

The writer is informed that the reductions, except on commercial buildings, will amount to from 10 to 50 per cent.

Anyone in Daly City having insured or reinsured since last March should get in touch with the company with which they are insured, as there may be a substantial reduction in rates.

SOUTH CITY REDMEN DEFEAT LOCAL TEAM

The Daly City Merchants' baseball team took a trip to South San Francisco last Sunday and played the Redmen, the Merchants coming out on the short end of an 8 to 7 score. It was a hard fought game from start to finish.

The Merchants scored three runs in the first inning and four in the third. It looked like a walk-away for them until the Redmen scored four runs, after two men were out, in the fourth inning. From then on it was a real battle, with the Redmen drawing blood in both the eighth and ninth innings by scoring two runs in each frame.

Gus Ford pitched good ball, allowing three earned runs, and striking out five Redmen. The outfielders played a great game—Fred Benedetti and "Mo" Plansky both made sensational catches, while George Hyler starred at the bat. Joe Drucker also turned in a good catch that stopped a run in the first inning, and also collected two hits for himself. The team was weakened when Jimmy Keane, hard hitting third baseman, hurt his ankle while sliding into second in the third inning.

GRACE CHURCH WILL OBSERVE RALLY DAY

The Grace Presbyterian Sunday school will observe rally day on October 7, commencing at 10 a. m. A good program has been arranged, of interest to parents and children alike. Mothers and fathers will do much to encourage the pupils and teachers by their presence.

At the evening service Holy Communion will be dispensed, when Rev. Howard D. Chandler will speak on a subject suitable for the occasion. There will be a vocal quartet by Miss Irons, Mrs. A. L. McNair, Mr. Jones and Mr. Barazoto. Piano and violin selections by Miss Mildred Swan and Messrs. Walter and Jack Parker.

WHIST AND DANCE PLANNED BY NATIVE DAUGHTERS

Reserve October 17 on your calendar of dates, as the night to attend the big whist game to be held in the Masonic Hall. This whist is for the benefit of the homeless children of the state. You read in the papers of infants left on door-steps and other out of the way places that are abandoned by their parents, and it is these children that the Native Daughters of your state take and raise and place in homes for adoption. Each Parlor of the state has its share to do, and they are now calling on you, the people of this community, to help them do their share in this great work. Your attendance at this whist and dance will go toward making this a huge success. Help your local Parlor in this worthy cause.

SEEK STATE AID FOR OCEAN SHORE ROUTE

It is announced that state participation in the construction of the proposed Ocean Shore highway and the Juipero Serra boulevard extension into San Mateo county is to be asked by the directors of joint highway districts Nos. 9 and 10. What form this participation is to take is to be determined at a joint conference between the directors of the two districts and the State Highway Commission at an early date.

Supervisors John W. Poole of San Mateo, Andrew J. Gallagher of San Francisco, and George H. Rostron of Santa Cruz, directors of district No. 9, Ocean Shore highway, met Thursday at the City Hall in San Francisco to approve bills and surveys. The latter are to be filed with the State Highway Commission. They cover the Pedro mountain and Waddell creek sections. The directors voted to ask their respective counties for an appropriation of $5,000 for preliminary expenses, to be divided 55 per cent from San Francisco, 30 per cent from San Mateo county, and 15 per cent from Santa Cruz county.

The directors of joint highway district No. 10, San Mateo highway, meeting also at the City Hall in San Francisco, elected Supervisor Thomas L. Hickey of San Mateo county as president, Supervisor Alfred Roncovieri of San Francisco, treasurer, R. J. Martin as secretary, Joseph J. Phillips as right of way agent, and M. M. O'Shaughnessy as engineer.

Reports were submitted that the acquisition of rights of way was proceeding satisfactorily, many property owners agreeing to the contracts in anticipation of the full organization of the district and the appropriation of funds.

PEOPLE TO AIR VIEWS ON COUNTY CONSOLIDATION

San Mateo county residents will have the opportunity to air their views on the proposed consolidation of San Mateo and San Francisco counties and the proposed charter form of government at a special mass meeting called for Monday, October 29, by the county board of supervisors at the regular meeting last Monday in Redwood City.

Fred H. Drake, president of the San Mateo County Chamber of Commerce, suggested that the board call such a meeting, in order that the board and the Chamber of Commerce may get an idea as to whether the people want annexation, charter goverment, or whether they want the present form of administration to continue.

The board instructed Drake to send out notices of the meeting to civic leaders, representatives of the various Chambers of Commerce in the county, and other organizations, and to various citizens. Anyone can attend the gathering, however, and he will have the chance to make suggestions, ask questions, and discuss the propositions generally.

The session will begin at 10 o'clock on October 10, in the supervisors chambers in the court house in Redwood City.

PIONEER BOYS CLUB HOLD MEETING AT GRACE CHURCH

An enthusiastic group of boys met at Grace Presbyterian chruch Wednesday evening for the first meeting of the Pioneer Boys' Club. Hugo Irons was elected to the office of Leader. Twelve other boys were enrolled, and the boys adopted "Kit Carson" as their club name. Other officers chosen are: Assistant Leader, Al Ennis; Chief Ranger, Bill Pilgrim; Deupty Ranger, Jim Welsh; Recorder, Jack Parker; Treasurer, Bob Irons. The club is to meet every Wednesday night at 7:30 at the church. It is open to boys of 12 to 15 years of age, and any boy of that age is invited to attend the meeting next week.

The Pioneer Club is affiliated with the Y. M. C. A. of San Francisco. An attractive but simple ritual forms the opening of every meeting. Pioneer Club aims to help each boy develop four-square along the four lines: physical, intellectual, service, and devotional.

The men's committee in charge of the club were present to assist. This committee includes Messrs. A. L. McNair, William Jacques, Jack Carnegie and the Pastor, Rev. H. D. Chandler. The meeting was concluded by a new game with paper bags, greatly enjoyed by the Pioneers.

Opening of Alemany Boulevard

Opening of the first units of the Alemany boulevard, the first of the six major buolevard projects for which the people of San Francisco voted $9,380,000 last year, is set for Thanksgiving day, according to an announcement last Thursday by Supervisor Andrew J. Gallagher, chairman of the streets committee of the board of supervisors.

PARK MENACED BY FIRE, SAYS WARDEN

Property owners in the redwood grove near Pescadero will be asked to meet for conference with the San Mateo county board of supervisors on Monday, October 15, to discuss the matter of co-operation with the board in the matter of fire protection.

Bert Werder, county fire warden, appeared before the board of supervisors last Monday and told of the lack of trails and other fire protective conditions in the redwood groves of the county. He suggested that a meeting be called, at which the board could ask the co-operation of the property owners and suggested that they make a small donation for the blazing of trails, etc.

During the last fire at Pescadero, according to Werder, the fire fighters had to actually fight their way through the heavy undergrowth, in order to get to the fire to bring it under control. Werder suggests that some sort of road be made through other wooded sections of the county in order that a truck might carry its load of fire fighters to the neighborhood of the fire. He also suggested that several old government trails be opened.

At present, Werder said, there is only the Big Basin road from Santa Cruz county, and the China grade leading to the area at the back of the Memorial grove, San Mateo county's Memorial park. He stated that the cost of clearing trails would be about $2,000.

Werder praised the motor corps of the San Mateo county Red Cross in assisting with forest fire fighting throughout the county.

ADDITIONS TO TRAFFIC SQUAD WILL BE MADE

"Five members of the state motor vehicle department will be sent to this county within a few days to assist the county squad in a campaign to reduce the number of serious automobile accidents on the highways of the county," said Supervisor John Poole during a discussion of traffic conditions by the board of supervisors at the meeting Monday in Redwood City.

Supervisor Hickey said that there are more "night joy riders" in this county than in any other county in the state, and that this may be the reason why so many of the accidents in which people are killed happen at night time.

Captain Jimmie Logan of the county traffic squad does not approve of the "three-line idea" on the highways, according to Sueprvisor Poole. Supervisor Hickey brought out the point that motorists do not observe the speed limits in the three "lanes." He said that the person desiring to make the fastest speed allowed quite often bumped some one who was traveling at a slower pace and should be in another "lane."

Supervisor Poole declared that the county roads, besides the state highway, should be patrolled more efficiently.

TANFORAN RACES TO BEGIN ON OCTOBER 13

Next Sunday afternoon, October 7, the Tanforan Jockey Club will play host to the racing enthusiasts who desire to inspect the model Tanforan race course and the beautiful clubhouse. Those that make the journey to Tanforan will find the plant in spic and span order, ready to welcome back the thorougbreds on Saturday, October 13, when the racing season begins. The amplifiers, otherwise known as the public address system, which will be used at Tanforan to describe the running of the races, will be tried out next Sunday with a program of music.

The racing meet at Tanforan which opens on October 13 for a twenty-day run, will be repleted with novelty features in addition to the stakes and handicaps that will be decided during the meeting. These will include races for army horses, ridden by army officers, for polo ponies, for hunters, and one for the ladies only. A call has been sent out for these events. They will all be run on the flat at various distances.

SAN MATEO MUSICIANS WILL CONTEST IN RADIO AUDITION

Musical experts have their eyes on San Mateo county. The best young singers of San Mateo county and San Francisco will assemble tomorrow in the auditorium of the Galileo high school to compete in the qualifying round for the national radio audition. Last year San Mateo county won. Miss Emilia Da Prato, of South San Francisco, won out in the city contest, later in the state and district contests and then won second place in the national finals. San Mateo county hopes to repeat this year.

SPECIAL DIVIDEND SET AT $5 A SHARE

One of the most important announcements to be made thus far regarding the distribution of stock of the Bank of America, was put out in the past few days by the Bancitaly Corporation, which owns the big New York institution. The statement, which concerns the disposition of $35,000,000 worth of stock, reads as follows:

"Distribution to the stockholders of the Bank of Italy and Bancitaly Corporation of one share of the capital stock of the Bank of America for each forty shares of Bank of Italy and Bancitaly Corporation, will be made January 1, pursuant to action recently taken by the directors of the Bancitaly Corporation and the National Bankitaly Company. The distribution will be made to stockholders of record November 1.

"On the basis of the present price at which the stock of the Bank of America is selling, this means that Bank of Italy and Bancitaly Corporation stockholders will receive the equivalent of a special dividend of approximately $5 a share. The total value of the stock that will be distributed in accordance with the plan as outlined aggregates more than $35,000,000.

"Stockholders of the Bank of Italy and Bancitaly Corporation who subscribed for Bank of America at $225 a share earlier in the year are now given a sufficient additional advantage, so that for each five shares originally purchased, they will now own eight shares."

The official letter to stockholders of the bank and the corporation, signed by A. P. Giannin, president of the corporation, said:

"We are pleased to notify you that the board of directors of Bancitaly Corporation has resolved to distribute 130,000 shares of the capital stock of the Bank of America National Association to the stockholders of record on the books of Bancitaly Corporation at the close of business November 1, in the ratio of one share of Bank of America National Association stock for every forty shares of Bancitaly Corporation stock.

"Certificates evidencing full shares of Bank of America National Association stock affected by this distribution, as well as fractional warrants which are to be sold or converted into full shares on the open market, will be mailed as soon as it is practicable to do so, which should be on or before January 2, 1929.

"Please know that we are appreciative of your continued co-operation in the promtion of the welfare and success of our corporation."

The letter explains that those holding less than forty shares of Bank of Italy or Bancitaly Corporation will be entitled to a fractional share of Bank of America as their interests show.

RESULT OF PRIMARY VOTE IS ANNOUNCED

Election of thirty-four California Superior Judges and four Appellate Court Justices at the August primary was announced Monday by Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan in an official statement of the vote.

Out of a registration of 2,009,599 for the primary election, 740,556 went to the polls, and United States Senator Hiram W. Johnson topped all other candidates, receiving 420,219 votes for Republican renomination, and also 2,657 "write in" Democratic votes.

Minor Moore received 94,194 votes to capture the Democratic nomination for United States Senator. Lena Morrow Lewis, Socialist, polled 2,306.

Securing 92,710 Republican votes, but losing the nomination of that party to Senator Johnson, Charles H. Randall, prohibitionist, managed to win prohibition party honors from his rival, Wiley J. Phillips, by a scant margin of 271.

Official count in the eleven congressional districts show that only three incumbents will be opposed at the November election.

Congressman Arthur Monroe Free, Republican, Eighth district, took the honors of his own party, but lost to Cecelia C. Casserly, 8,649 votes to 6,033.

Congressman William E. Evans, Republican, Ninth district, will have two opponents in November, James B. Ogg, Democrat, and Christian Sorensen, Socialist.

Winning both Republican and Democratic nominations, Congressman Jo Crail, Tenth district, is opposed only by Harry Sherr, Socialist.

SAN FRANCISCAN INSTALLS TELEPHONE ABOARD YACHT

The first telephone to be installed aboard a yacht on the Pacific Coast was recently ordered by George P. Fuller, president of the W. P. Fuller Company of San Francisco. Captain Roy Steele can now get last-minute orders from his employer, as the ship to shore connection enables Fuller to communicate with his vessel at all times while the boat is moored to the wharf.

The installation consist of a marine jack and plug on the wharf and another jack and plug on the railing of the forecastle of the yacht. Wires were brought through the brass railing and down into the cabin, where they were connected to a subset and head telephone. A long cord has been placed on the telephone set in order to move it about the boat.

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received by the City Council of the City of Daly City, up to eight o'clock P. M. on Monday, the 8th day of October, 1928, for the doing of the following public work in the City of Daly City in Vista Grande Park between Park Avenue North and Park Avenue South, as follows:

GRADING and the proper preparation of the sub-grade for pavement.

CONSTRUCTION of combined concrete curb and gutter.

CONSTRUCTION of one of the following alternate types of pavements:

Alternate A. Two (2) inch asphaltic concrete pavement.

Alternate B. Three (3) inch waterbound rock macadam base pavement with two applications of "Bitumuls," each one-third gallon per square yard, and screenings as per specification.

All of said work is to be of the character, dimensons, forms, and in the locations as all are more fully shown on the plans and specifications for said work, prepared by the City Engineer of said City of Daly City therefor, and adopted by the City Council of said City on September 24th, 1928. Said plans and specifications may be examined in the office of the City Clerk in Daly City, or in the office of the City Engineer, George A. Kneese, Surveyor's office, Court House, Redwood City, California.

Each bid shall be accompanied by a certified check upon some responsible bank, for at least ten (10%) per cent. of the proposal, payable to the City of Daly City, and conditioned that the bidder will, within ten days after the award of the contract to him, enter into a contract for the doing of the work, and will provide surety bonds for the faithful performance and for the payment of labor and materials satisfactory to the City Council of Daly City.

Bids must be itemized, and shall be on forms furnished by said City Engineer. The City Council reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Dated: Daly City, California, September the 26th, 1928.

B. C. ROSS, City Clerk.

Real Span of Human Education Extends From the Cradle to the Grave

By ANNA BELLE JOHNSTON, Nursery School Expert.

IT IS too often assumed that education begins at the school age of six years. Emotional personality and habitual slants begin at birth. So should education. The child may be said to graduate into the schools.

Children do not go untrained until six years of age. They are being trained somehow, somewhere, every hour of their lives. It is better to know how and where—as in the nursery schools.

The responsibility may rest entirely with the parents, but many of them do not feel they are adequately trained or have sufficient time or proper facilities. No thoughtful person fails to recognize the difficulties of the job of being a parent.

When families become convinced of the desirability of holidays for mothers away from their children a great step in correcting morbid emotional attitudes will have been taken.

This should mean a daily as well as an annual period of freedom. In the former it is the nursery school that is providing the desired separation.

The infant is in the nursery school three hours each day. This gives the mother an opportunity to view her own work and a chance for recreation while the child is receiving the scientific attention it should have during these early years. The child is placed in a social group of 15 children of its own age with two trained teachers acting as their guides.

The nursery school does not assume all the responsibility. The mother spends one morning a month in the school observing methods followed in handling her child. After such observations the mother has a conference with the director and discusses every phase of her child's development, thus setting up a link between home and school.

Nursery schools aim to provide a laboratory in which the student may learn child care with real children as the subjects of their study. Too many girls undertake the responsibilities of home and children without adequate preparation. Public schools now are recognizing a responsibility in this connection and in increasing numbers are including training in motherhood.

New Artistic Era Certain to Be the Result of America's Material Activity

By PROF. DE WITT HENRY PARKER, University of Michigan.

History shows that periods of high artistic activity usually coincide with epochs of political and commercial pre-eminence, and into the latter we have already come. For better or for worse we have left the day of the "whole man" behind. In the growing complexity of civilization the problems of life have become so difficult and so numerous that in order to meet them each man must apply his whole nature to a single one of them, at the cost of integrity of personality. Losing the "wholeness" which is so characteristic of beauty, and being only fractions of our possible selves, we are loaded with longings and repressions and disfigured with strange inequalities of character.

Mechanism will go on its unrepentant way, but play and art will bring us the freedom which we lack. The harmony which we achieve through play is accomplished by an exclusion of worry and work. The harmony of art is one of inclusion, in which the whole resources of our personalities are called into action. But, while in all forms of play and sport it is conceded that America stands the peer of any nation on earth, in art, if we take the sweep of the last hundred years, she has not matched the most artistically gifted nations of Europe.

We are now fast building a tradition and a culture of our own. The mechanical nature of our civilization has created a need for art. And that secure hold on economic wealth so necessary for artistic culture has been won. Need and opportunity will combine to make the future of art in America immense.

Unlimited Possibilities of Achievement Offered in the Church Life

By REV. ROBERT S. CHALMERS (Episcopal), Dallas, Texas.

To judge from the articles one reads frequently in all the greater magazines today, the supreme activity of the modern Christian church is either controversy or raising funds. One would think that the entire energy of Christendom was being expended in the controversial issues between modernism and fundamentalism, between Catholic and Protestant, between traditional and liberal.

To hear certain people talk and to read their writings it would almost seem as if the principal objectives of the Episcopal church was to preserve the thirty-nine articles of religion; to read the equally fervent outbursts of equally sincere people one would believe that the only salvation of the church lay in discarding those articles.

Through the school of applied religion the national council of the Episcopal church hopes to create a different impression than that the clergy are always engaged in an every-member canvass, or constantly seeking support in a large way. The national council believes that the life of the church represents adventure more thrilling even than the exploits of Lindbergh; possibilities of achievement unrivaled among mankind today; human interest stories far more exciting than the most realistic fiction, and above all, opportunity for varied, interesting and worthwhile service.

Treaty for Renunciation of War Inspiring Token of International Love

By REV. E. B. DARLINGTON, New York.

The spirit of the nations who have approved the Kellogg treaty for the renunciation of war is a token of international love. The best use that we can have age-long life for is love. In the story of man we may learn the story of love and look for its repetition in our own lives. Let us picture our own human life as the scenes of the development of love pass onward.

At first, in the dim ages of Plato's time, all that love desired was the possession of beauty. Again, there is the kind of love where the lover desires not only his other half, but possession of the beautiful and birth in beauty. This yearning is the earnest of age-long life. Among mankind this is called biological immortality or age-long life.

The true order of love is to advance from love of one to all fair forms, then to fair practices and lastly to fair thoughts. In this connection, such a gesture as the ratification of the peace treaties would seem to show the highest order of love in nations having advanced to the conception of international justice.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

Fire losses in State-protected forest, grain and grazing areas total $1,030,000 for this year, State Forester M. B. Pratt announced a few days ago. Considering a total of 1,261 fires, Pratt said the greatest damage has resulted in grain lands. The total grain field loss has been $578,057.25. Timber damage, thus far, has been held down to $32,086.75.

Hearings on the 1929-31 budget will commence on October 1, according to the announcement of A. R. Heron, director of the State Department of Finance. Preliminary estimates indicate that the total amount recommended for State expenses will be slightly higher than during the current biennium, Heron said.

Industrial employment was 2 per cent greater in August than in the same month last year. Total payrolls showed a 6.8 per cent increase and average weekly earnings were 4.7 per cent larger. Thousands of non-reporting outdoor workers continue to be employed in harvesting large crops and in getting them ready for market, according to the Wells Fargo Bank & Union Trust company of San Francisco.

Save California beaches—preserve California's redwoods. With this plea for the $6,000,000 park bonds which will come up for public approval in the November election, Senator Arthur H. Breed last week predicted victory for the State Park Bonds Act. Senator Breed, president of the State Senate and author of the act, declared that the public would soon lose the use of beaches and forests, now being absorbed by private capital, unless the bonds were passed.

Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan announced the other day that the tickets of the Republican and Prohibition parties for President and Vice President will be listed separately on the November election ballot, even though these two parties in California have chosen the same group of presidential electors. On the ballot forms, one for each assembly district, Jordon said, the groups of party electors must be so rotated that each will appear first on the ballot approximately the same number of times.

With organized labor behind the movement, Frank G. Snook, chief of the State Division of Motor Vehicles, announced recently that his department is drafting legislation for centralized State control of California traffic police. The State Federation of Labor passed a resolution at its convention in Sacramento endorsing the proposal to abolish the present "doubleheaded" system of State and County traffic officer control. At present the State motor vehicle chief appoints traffic officers for service in the various counties, but the County boards of supervisors prepare the list of eligible persons.

Gasoline tax revenues collected by the various States last year netted a total for the Nation of $258,966,851. California, with the largest registration of any State collecting such a tax and with the highest ratio of cars per population in the Union, raised a greater amount of road revenues by this method than any other State. Motorists in California paid a total of $22,467,083. Of the total collected in the Nation, $182,095,503 was available for the construction and maintenance of State highways under the supervision of the State highway departments and $55,440,161 was apportioned to counties for local road purposes and engineers at Oakland.

Contracts for two Superior California highway jobs were signed a few days ago by Bert B. Meek, State director of public works. One, let to J. P. Brennan of Redding, is for the construction of two reinforced concrete bridges across Valley and Indian Creeks, twenty-five and forty-two miles, respectively, west of Redding on the Weaverville lateral. The contract price is $22,431.22. The other is for widening and surfacing with bituminous macadam of 2.1 miles between Sheridan and the northerly boundary of Placer county, awarded to E. F. Hilliard of Sacramento on a bid of $13,594.

Arrests of 600 narcotic law violators have been made by State, city and county officers in the California campaign against the "dope" traffic since the first of this year, State Narcotic Director Frank H. Benson announced recently. Most of those apprehended have received jail sentences, Benson said, and sixty of them have been given terms in the State penitentiary.

James Boyer, one of the directors of the East Bay Municipal Utilities District, announced last week that the Lafayette dam, work on which was stopped recently when the center section fell, will have to be entirely reconstructed. The announcement followed a conference between directors

Every California's ballot will be worth exactly $10, collectable at the polls, if Senator-elect Frank Merriam of Long Beach is successful in securing adoption of a measure which he will propose at the January legislative session. The Merriam act, a compulsory voting measure, would fix a $10 poll tax on all Californians, with the proviso however, that payment be waived when the individual registers and votes at all elections. If this measure cannot be passed, Merriam said, he would support Governor Young's plan for compulsory registration of voters.

INFIELDERS LAST LONGEST IN PLAY

Usefulness Outlives Outfielders and Mound Men.

If you were to ask the average fan which lasts the longest in baseball—outfielders, infielders, pitchers or catchers—the answers would probably be outfielders. And the answer would be wrong, for it is the infielders who last the longest.

Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker are the exceptions, although it would appear that outfielders generally should have the edge. They do less work than the infielders and have less wear and tear of muscular tissues to contend with.

A comparison of the records of Cobb and Speaker and Eddie Collins for the best five years of the career of each will disclose that Cobb averaged 2.5 fielding chances a game, Speaker had 2.81 and Collins had an average of 5.4. These records show that Eddie did twice as much work as either of the others.

It is legs that slow down ball players before arms or eyes. Men who can still hit well at thirty-five or thirty-six are unable to stand the pace in base running or in covering ground in the field. They become poor defensive players, while their attacking powers are still undimmed.

And yet infielders, despite the tendon straining nature of their work, show a better record for staminа and endurance than the outfielders. Only two outfielders in addition to Cobb and Speaker have lasted twenty years or more. Paul Hines went through twenty seasons of pennant chasing and Jim O'Rourke did twenty-two years of campaigning.

Against this quartet of outfielders are eight infielders, all of more or less renown, who had twenty or more years of service to their credit.

Hans Wagner started out as an outfielder and then switched to the infield and did strenuous work at shortstop for many seasons. His career lasted for twenty-one years and he never spared himself. After he got through in the majors he continued his activities as a semipro and just the other day played a part of a game at Crafton.

Larry Lajoie spent twenty-one seasons in the National and American leagues, and other infielders who served for a score or more of years were Lave Cross, Jim White, Kid Gleason, Rhody Wallace and Eddie Collins.

Pitchers do not last long. Only two of them ever went two decades in the big show. Walter Johnson had twenty-one years in the American loop, all with Washington, and Denton Tecumseh (Cy) Young lasted for twenty-two seasons in the National and American circuits.

Catchers are also short lived in the majors. Jim McGuire was the only one who ever lasted over a score of years. Continuous squatting cuts short the career of catchers. This affects the tendons in the knees and slows up the backstops considerably.

Accustomed to Having Double-Headers Played

Fans of the International league have become so accustomed to having double-headers served up to them that they feel they are being cheated when they don't get one.

One day last season the champion Pittsburgh Pirates had an open date on Sunday and scheduled a game in Jersey City. "Goin' to the game today?" asked a fan of a friend who usually attended the Sabbath contests. "Naw, course not," was the disgusted reply. "They're only gonna' play one game."

The fact that the major leaguers were in town made no difference to this fan. He wanted his double-header or nothing.

Yankees Buy Ed Wells, Turned Down by Griffs

Ed Wells, big southpaw pitcher sold by the Washingtons to Birmingham after a trial in the spring, has been purchased by the Yankees, and will report to his new club next season.

The New York club will be the third in the American league for Wells. He was with the Tigers for a time before joining the Nationals last year. The Washington club immediately shipped him to Birmingham, but recalled him for spring training this year. Wells showed little in exhibition contests and was sold to the Barons.

Just a Little Smile

WHAT HE GAVE FOR BALL

On reaching the links one morning Smith was accosted by his usual caddie. "Excuse me, sir," said the lad, "but I've got the ball we lost yesterday at the second. One of the village kids had it."

"Oh, good," said Smith, putting his hand in his pocket. "I'll give you whatever you gave for it."

"Er—no thanks, sir," said the caddie, hastily. "I gave a black eye for it."

Why He Sighed

The thin, pale man in a large bathing suit, standing knee deep in the water, sighed.

"Why," we asked, "are you so sad?"

"Alas!" he answered, "the sea is the grave of my first wife."

"But you married again."

"Yes," he said, "and my second wife won't go into the water."

I'm thankful that I cannot sing.

Heavily Remunerated

Wife (at movie)—Why is it you never make love to me like that?

Hubby—Say, do you know what that actor gets for doing that?—Capper's Weekly.

Yes, but What?

Foreign Mission Subscriber—Have you had any success in your work with cannibals?

Lady Missionary — Yes; we've taught them to eat with knives and forks.

Deeply Considerate

Chivalrous Gentleman (to man who has just settled in the seat he has vacated)—Pardon me, sir, but I mean that seat for this lady here.

Big Man—It's quite all right; that's my wife!

Pa's Idea of It

"Pa," said Clarence, "what is the good will'?"

"It's the one left by a rich relative that makes you his sole heir," replied his dad.

Salts Fine for Aching Kidneys

When Back Hurts Flush Your Kidneys as You Clean Your Bowels

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region begin drinking lots of water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

"WORTH WEIGHT IN GOLD"

Verdict of Woman Who Tried Pinkham's Compound

Tully, N. Y.—"It hurt me to walk or sit down without help and I felt sick and weak. My mother-in-law took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she induced me to take it. I am now on the fourth bottle and have also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. The medicines that will do for me what the Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash have done are certainly worth their weight in gold. I think I have given them a fair trial and I expect to take two more bottles of the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Charles Morgan, R. F. D. 1, Tully, N. Y.

AMERICA'S CROSS OF FIRE

A fire prevention artist aptly pictured a great cross amid a sea of flames. Upon the cross he lettered the word CARELESSNESS and called the completed sketch "America's Great Cross." There is a fire every minute of the day somewhere throughout the length and breadth of our land.

If, from above, we could photograph simultaneously all the fires that rage in the course of a year, America would indeed appear as a sea of flames. Two companion crosses, however, should be reared alongside the first one and be labeled False Economy in Building Construction and False Economy in Fire Protection. These factors, with carelessness, are largely responsible for our shameful annual fire loss, which amounted to nearly five hundred million dollars in 1927.

The organizations that are endeavoring to "lift America's great cross from her shoulders" advocate an all-year fire prevention campaign, but special efforts are put forth during Fire Prevention week, which this year falls on October 7 to 13. An intensive program at this time aims to center public interest upon the things people should practice all year to make America safer against fire.

FORCE 100 YEARS OLD

For a century the police force of London, operating from headquarters in famed Scotland Yard, has held an enviable record for efficiency, although in its early years the organization was far from popular with the public.

Owing to the unsatisfactory state of law observance at the time, Sir Robert Peel in 1828 took steps toward the organization of an effective police force for the British metropolis. Its first headquarters at Scotland Yard was furnished with only a table and two chairs, but its facilities were rapidly expanded and the force was soon recruited to about 3,000 men.

Feeling that the new powers conferred upon the police constituted an undue restriction of liberty, hooting crowds reviled the new force, calling them obnoxious names, including those of "Bobbies" and "Peelers," which have persisted to this day. These names, of course, were derived from that of their sponsor, Robert Peel.

As an illustration of the effectiveness of the present force, it has been pointed out that in a recent year only 15,662 crimes were reported in London, while 333,083 were noted in the less populous city of New York. The efficiency of Scotland Yard detectives is proverbial, and comparatively few London murderers go unpunished.

This probably accounts for the fact that while the yearly homicide rate in London is only about one in 100,000, in several cities of the United States it runs more than fifty times as high, and averages more than ten times as high in the country at large.

LESS WASTE ON FARM

New discoveries which enable former waste products of the farm to be used for various purposes, and even for human food, are being made by chemists to Dr. F. C. Blanck, government food research director.

Waste material in the citrus fruit industry, which formerly cost the growers about $1 a ton to get rid of, is now being utilized in the production of citric acid, orange and lemon oils, juice for beverages and pectin, the jelly basis in fruit.

Pea pods have been found rich in protein and sugar and methods of converting these into human food are being worked out. Skim milk, already used to advantage in feeding hogs and chickens, is being more profitably made into a milk powder used extensively in the baking industry.

For some time the fiber of corn stalks has been successfully turned into paper and building boards, straw is utilized in similar products, and a long list of former waste materials have been found of economic value.

All these developements tend to give the farmer a greater return from his crops, and in the opinion of many the chemists will ultimately prove to be the one to point the way to real farm relief.

DIFFERING OPINIONS

It is quite natural that persons who have decided opinions on any subject should try to bring everyone else to their way of thinking. In their zeal to vindicate their own opinions many refuse to admit that there may be some virtue in the contentions of those who hold different views.

In cases where the issue is a clear-cut one, involving right and wrong, it may be that an uncompromising attitude is justified. But who shall say just what is right and what is wrong? Ideas concerning right and wrong change with the times.

Not many years ago some of the most cultured and enlightened people in the world believed that human slavery was legitimate. Even George Washington was one of these; at least he was a large slave owner. We think different nowadays.

What is needed in the world is not that we should all think alike, but that we should have a greater feeling of tolerance and respect for the opinions of others, when honestly held, no matter how much they may differ from our own.

The average normal person is really seeking for the truth—but the truth is often elusive and each must find it in his own way.

Have respect and tolerance for the opinions of others. You may be somewhat wrong, and the other fellow may have the right view, after all.

RENOUNCING WAR

Plenipotentiaries of fifteen nations, including the United States, Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy and Japan, on August 27th, in Paris, signed a mulitlateral treaty renouncing war. Since that time over three-fourths of all countries have signed or declaring their intention of doing so. By signing this treaty the contracting parties agree that the settlement of any dispute or conflict that may arise among them, no matter the nature or origin, should never be sought except through pacific means. It was described by President Coolidge as a "great forward step in the preservation of peaceful relations between the nations."

The existence of such a document is doubtless a signal indication of the future arrival of a time when guns and other implements of warfare may be moulded into ploughshares forever and ever, of a time when the people will no longer be called upon to bear the weighty expense of an army and navy.

Yet even the most optimistic, the extreme pacifists, would hardly be justified in advocating the scrapping of this country's armaments in reliance upon the treaty. Too often in history have nations forgotten their agreements in the lust for blood. Not yet is the veneer of man's civilization thick enough to withstand the innate desire for conflict. In the present stage, strong defense forces probably still remain one of the best assurances of continued peace for this country.

Though this be true, it does not dim the significance of the treaty. The signing of the agreement by the representatives of so many millions of people points to the prevalence of the universal desire for better understandings and closer relations between countries. It is indicative of the widespread realization of the futility of war and bloodshed. It brings near the vision, makes more probable the dawn of a day when nations shall exist, not as jealous, suspicious and unsympathetic units, but in friendliness and understanding, without the fear of conflict. H.

OIL DRILLING CONTROL

An important and interesting question will probably come before the Supreme Court of the United States in connection with the restriction of oil well drilling by the Oklahoma Corporation Commission.

Acting under a state law, the Commission has ordered that drilling in certain areas be stopped as a conservation measure, in view of the great over-production of crude petroleum. An oil company has challenged the Commission's right to thus prevent a person owning or leasing land from the free use of the resources found upon or under it.

The question is far reaching, because if the goverment may prevent one from using his property as he sees fit, it reduces his rights of ownership just that much. He might be forbidden to mine coal, cut trees or even plant crops, applying the same principal. A land owner might have a wealth of oil underground, but by being deprived of the right to bring it to the surface he might die in poverty before the authorities gave permission to recover it.

While the restriction of drilling by agreement among land owners or lessees seems to be a practical and legitimate means of conservation, the justic of permitting a state to arbitrarily forbid use of one's property in the manner sought by the Okhahama Commission appears to be open to question, at least.

COAST TO COAST BUS

Inaugurating a regular coast to coast bus service, the first transcontinental motor coach recently arrived in New York from Los Angeles, having made the trip in five days and 14 hours, as compared with the fastest railroad time of three and one-half days.

The passenger fare by bus is about three-fourths of that charged by the railroads, including Pullman fare. The route was over the Santa Fe trail from Los Angeles to Denver, thence by the United States highway to St. Louis, the old National trail to Pittsburgh, and the Lincoln highway to New York. The average speed made was approximately 25 miles an hour.

Passengers may stop overnight at division terminals if they wish, but if not the bus seats may be placed in a reclining position for sleeping. Each bus seats 26 passengers, and each passenger may take 60 pounds of baggage. Three of these buses will leave New York and Los Angeles daily.

Now the transcontinental traveler may have his choice of three scheduled means of travel—train, motorbus or airplane.

REVEALS FIRE HAZARDS

A warning in time is worth heeding. To some people there is "handwriting on the wall" in the warning in the report of fire hazards rendered by the fire prevention bureau of a large mid-western city.

For the month of June the bureau made 4,401 inspections, finding fire hazards to the number of 1,365. Predominating in this total were bad heating units and rubbish, divided as follows: Flues, 387; furnaces, stoves and hot plates, 58; heating appliances, 6; stoves and smokepipes, 29; total heating units bad, 480.

Accumulations of straw, trash, rubbish and waste paper constituted fire hazards to the number of 545.

Since these two classifications contained the greater number of fire hazards, it is very probable that they caused the majority of fires suffered by the city in the past, according to the National Board of Fire Underwriters. It is also likely that a similar state of affairs exists in most communities.

Let all take heed, therefore, and correct such conditions. Rubbish, the largest item, requires attention continually. It should not be allowed to accumulate at any time or place. This month, particularly, heating units should be inspected and unsafe conditions corrected.

A poet in Peru was sent to prison for three years. Justice was probably tempered with mercy at that.

After getting fired it is natural to stroll by the place occasionally to see whether the firm is still in business.

Muckrakers, too, may find it somewhat difficult to adjust themselves to conditions in heaven.

A New Yorker was found living in a sewer. Probably a playwright looking for atmosphere.

It's a shame the way the reporters are neglecting President Coolidge. They have even stopped picking out future jobs for him.

Good heating and fuel economy come only with heating equipment carefully planned and installed

Picture shows how floor-furnace sets in floor. Heat is controlled by handy valve.

You know how homes differ in their size and the type of building materials used. There is 10% less heat loss through plaster and board walls as through brick walls. And there is 25% less heat loss through insulated walls. These are some of the facts our staff considers before recommending a heating system. For after all, a furnace must keep your home warm no matter how your home is built.

Only trained engineers can weigh such facts and fit the proper heating equipment to each home.

There is no obligation if you have one of our men look over your home. The facts he finds will be taken back for careful consideration by our staff. Then you'll know the recommendations they make will be good. As we will always be in business we can only afford to recommend good gas heating equipment to our customers. And that is one reason why all our recommendations are carefully made. Another reason is, this company knows by years of carefully kept records, that good heating and fuel economy come only with heating equipment carefully planned and installed.

A postcard or phone call will bring a heating expert to your home.

Colma News Notes

Mr. F. R. Greene is visiting at the ranch of Mrs. Emma Woolsey and son Oscar, in Banta, San Joaquin county.

Mrs. Josephine Greene and Mrs. Amelia Martini attended a theatre party at Loew's Warfield one evening last week.

Don't forget the dance to be given by the Colombo Society on Saturday evening, October 14, at the new Colombo auditorium.

Mr. and Mrs. Guido Santucci, nee Elsie Calcagno, are the happy parents of a fine baby daughter, born during the early part of last week.

Burglars entered the A. Boni Hardware store early in the morning of Thursday of last week, by breaking the glass in a window. Two rifles were stolen.

A whist party and dance for the benefit of St. Maximus church, will be held in the Daly City Auditorium on October 16 under the direction of James Callan.

William Lagomarsino, who is very popular and well known in Colma, has entered the insurance business, and his friends wish him much success in his new work.

Voters, don't forget, if you want to vote for president and have not registered this year, you must do so before 12 o'clock this Saturday night, October 6. Do your duty as a citizen and register.

Mr. Robert Croperly, of Railroad avenue, who has been very ill and confined to his bed under the care of Dr. Oschner, is able to be up and about his home again. His many friends wish him a speedy recovery.

Frank Remington, eldest child of Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Remington, Jr., who underwent an operation in a San Francisco hosital during the latter part of last week, having his tonsils removed, is now at his parents' home and on the road to recovery.

U. Granucci, A. Olcese and Les Volkman spent last week end at Maxweel duck hunting, coming home with the limit.

Marjorie Fuchs, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Fuchs, who has been seriously ill with influenza, is now on the road to recovery.

Don't forget to attend the monster whist party to be given this Saturday night, October 6, at Colma Community Center. Score cards 25 cents.

Mr. Howard Greene and little son Norman, of Avon, visited at the home of Mr. Greene's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Greene, several days of this week.

Mrs. Fred Volman, nee Alice May, is sporting a new Chevrolet sedan, and her husband, Fred Volkman, is driving around in a new Chevrolet coupe.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Santuca, nee Elsa Calcagno, are receiving the congratulations of their many friends upon the arrival of a baby daughter, born this week.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Mirendette and children, Jennie, Louise and Alberta, returned home this week after spending some time at the Mondot ranch near Tracy.

The "Brides' dinner" given last Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. P. M. Brown by the Colma Girls' Club in honor of Mrs. George Volkman and Mrs. Fred Volkman was a delightful affair. Each of the brides were presented with a beautiful silver berry spoon.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Lagomarsino (nee Hazel Lorenz) are receiving the congratulations of their many friends upon the birth of a little son last Sunday at Morton's hospital in San Francisco. Mother and son are doing nicely. This is the second son in the family.

Miss Elsie Wilke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilke, returned home last Saturday evening after spending several enjoyable weeks at Camp Meeker. Miss Wilke's many friends were glad to see her back again, and she reports weather conditions were perfect, making her vacation ideal.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Insand, of San Francisco, who are the happy parents of a fine baby daughter, born this week in San Francisco, are receiving the congratulations of their many friends. Mrs. Insand, nee Tessie Fuchs, of Colma, and baby are reported doing nicely. This is the second daughter in the family.

Mrs. Henry Volkman, of 51 Wanda street, San Francisco, entertained several of her friends at a delightful luncheon on Thursday afternoon of last week. After the luncheon the ladies enjoyed a game of whist. The guests were Mrs. F. Volkman, Mrs. Les Volkman, Mrs. George Volkman, Mrs. George Wright, Mrs. Brinkman, Mrs. F. Mooney, and Mrs. Josephine Greene.

The I. C. F. Festival, which was held over last week end in Colma, was a decided success, both financially and socially. There was much intest in the contest for Queen, and on last Saturday night Miss Diva Conci was crowned Queen, having received the largest number of votes, and was awarded a beautiful diamond ring. Miss' Rose Gambraino, who received the second largest number of votes, and Miss Norma Bolentini, third in the race, each received a beautiful diamond ring. A dance and entertainment was given Saturday night, and on Sunday at 2 o'clock a parade was held, marching to Daly City and back. At 5 o'clock services were held in front of Holy Angels' church, after which a tempting ravioli dinner was served in the Colombo auditorium.

Lost—On September 20, from the home of Mrs. Josephine Greene, in Colma, a male canary. Kindly return to Mrs. Greene and receive reward.

SIDELIGHTS

Ladies who pluck their eyebrows to a thin line are warned by Dr. Bruckner of Berlin that they are laying up trouble for themselves. He declares that many cases of inflammation of the eyes result from the practice. We never could see that it added to their beauty, either.

Local boards for recommending moving pictures suitable for various ages are busy cataloguing and publishing lists of offerings as fit for "all ages," "high school age and over," "mature audiences," and so on. Now, don't you know every kid in town will be wild to see the pictures labeled "mature audiences?" And most of them will probably find a way to see them, too.

Rhode Island claims credit for having been the first state to pass an anti-speeding law, which provided a fine of five shillings for riding "either horse, mare or gelding at a gallup" on the streets of Newport. This law was passed in June, 1678, after an instance of "very grave hurte done to a small child by reason of exceeding fast and hard riding of horses in said town." So it appears that our mania for speed is not altogether due to gasoline.

After a blow on the chin, a French pugilist was dumb for four days and attending physicians declare that the concussion affected a nerve hitherto unknown to science. If this is true, we may yet find a way to silence talkative pests without killing them.

The entire village turned out to honor the memory and achievements of Ottmar Mergenthaler and place a beautiful tablet on the house in which he was born in Hatshel, Germany. As a struggling young inventor, his home town failed to recognize his mechanical genius, so he emigrated to America and gave to the world the linotype, which revolutionized the printing industry and stands as one of the epochal inventions of all time.

A Polish money lender claims fifteen beautiful Circassian women, belonging to the harem of Prince Hamid of Turkey, under the Turkish law which classes women as "chattels." The prince had been living in style at Budapest, but his extravagance led him into the clutches of the money lender, who now wants not only his "pound of flesh," but approximately a ton of the same.

Believe it or not. Several large laundries in England and Scotland replace collars free when they are worn out. The customer starts with a dozen collars and when one begins to show signs of wear he merely writes "replace" on it and a new one is substituted.

Just like having your Telephone.... brought .....to you

AN extension telephone is like having your telephone brought to you.
A telephone in the kitchen saves time and steps for market calls. A telephone in the bedroom adds that feeling of comfort and safety for night calls. No finer expression of thoughtfulness than having a telephone in the guest room.
Why delay when you can have one or more of these servants of convenience in your house at additional wages of only a few cents a day?
Simply call our Business Office and say, "I want an extension telephone."
A very great factor in the continued progress and improvement of telephone service is the intangible but quite real spirit of service that has become a tradition in the telephone business.

"I don't wonder," Weld declared, "and yet you had all sorts of friends and servants at hand, and local police, and passers-by. Now, up here, you may think you are perfectly secure because you hardly ever see a stranger, yet the woods may be full of them."

Grant tried to laugh; in reality his heart was thumping against his ribs painfully. He forced himself to appear interested.

"Then there might be outlaws and bad men watching us right now?"

Weld's answer appalled him.

"There are," said Swithin Weld. "I meant to have asked you if you'd seen anyone who answered to the description given by the fire warden. This man was a big, wild-looking bird with a rifle. Philbrick, the fire warden, knows every one for miles around, but he'd never set eyes on him before. He thinks it's a bootlegger blazing a trail down from the Canadian border."

"More probably a tramp," Trent suggested. "They often prospect for winter quarters about now, when the nights get cold."

Weld shook his head. Grant could see that this explanation did not satisfy him. There was a constriction about Grant's throat which made speech difficult. He hardly recognized his own voice.

"What do you think?" he demanded.

"I don't know what to say. The thing that puzzles me is what he wanted to prowl around this place for at about two o'clock this morning."

"That's interesting," Trent cried. "How near was he?"

Weld turned to the quaking Grant.

"You know that big tree outside your window, the one they call Washington's oak? He was sheltering behind that."

"Why didn't you put a bullet through him?" Grant cried with a passionate energy which he could see surprised his host. Fools! thought Grant, to speculate on a man his heart told him was Frank Sutton. His tumultuous emotions swept away all fear that his manner might be offensive. "Why didn't you shoot?"

"My dear Grant," Weld said, lifting his eyebrows a little, "what sort of defense could I have made to a judge and jury if I admitted I took a pot shot at a man who might be innocent of any wrong-doing? I propose we stalk him tonight and find out all about him."

"Fine," Trent agreed, his eyes sparkling. "He doesn't stand a chance against the three of us."

"The three!" Grant echoed. Not for worlds would he venture into the gloom of that forest by night. He knew it would be his fate to find the stranger face to face. While the others were creeping along wrong trails Sutton would have him at his mercy. Grant's flesh quaked at the thought.

"Don't you want to be in on the fun?" Weld demanded.

"I do not," Grant said irritably. "To begin with, you'll never catch him, and I don't want to go stumbling over roots and brambles in the dark looking for a single man in a forest as big as this."

"You needn't come if you feel that way," said Weld, "but it won't be as hard to get him as you think. We shall wait until everything is quiet and he comes out to gaze at your window—"

"My window!" Grant cried.

"You are the only person with a room at the southwest corner. I'll swear he was looking up at your room."

"I'll put a bullet through his head if he looks up again," Grant said savagely. His terrors were making him careless of any feelings but his own.

"I hope you won't," Weld said a trifle stiffly. "Both for your own sake and that of my uncle. To have a man murdered for looking up at a window isn't a thing that would please him."

"It wouldn't be murder, it would be self-defense," Grant answered sullenly. "I'm not going to be threatened and not put up a fight."

Trent looked at him with a sudden interest.

"Then you know who it is?" he demanded.

Grant was conscious that he had said too much. With a tremendous effort he pulled himself together.

"No more than you do," he returned. "It's this constant talk of crime that gets me nervous."

Trent turned to Weld and discussed methods of capture. It was plain to Grant that his conduct had disgusted them. He did not greatly care. He felt he needed the protection of cities and crowds. Tomorrow he would go. But first there was this damnable night to live through.

As a rule, after dinner Grant sat in the library before the open fire while the others played billiards. Tonight he would not remain alone. He followed them into the billiard room, but declined to play. His nerves were in no condition for that. That they ignored him did not hurt his feelings now. What he wanted was protective companionship, not conversation.

He went to his room at midnight. Instead of turning on the central lights he lighted only the shaded reading lamp over the bed. From the outside it would seem the room was dark.

There came a rap at his door. There was no way of locking or barring it as he had long ago found out. It was Anthony Trent who came in. He had changed his clothes to a garb more suited for the task that was before him. Trent switched on the lights regardless of Grant's expostulations.

"Don't you understand," he said, "that this room seems the attraction? We want whoever it may be outside to think you are still here. It's one o'clock now and Weld and I are going outside. Keep the light up whatever you do."

Trent came to the foot of the bed and looked at Grant.

"Grant," he said slowly, "you're not in a normal state. I don't know what it is but you give me the impression of being under a terrific strain."

"I am," said Grant. "It just h—l."

"Is it anything you could tell me? Many a man has gone insane from keeping his troubles to himself too long. They say an open confession's good for the soul. You must know what it is that's turning you into an abject coward. Is life worth living under such conditions? Perhaps I've no right to say it, but peace of mind is worth more than a fortune or position."

"I'm Just Irritable and Out of Sorts."

Grant could not possibly realize what a confession would mean. Its effect would be to free Sutton and put himself in its stead. Assuredly a life of ease and luxury was worth fighting for. Tomorrow he would rush back to New York and take passage in the first steamer he could find to some other country. There at least, he would be safe.

"My dear Trent," he said, with an affectation of tolerant scorn in his voice. "You couldn't possibly understand. You are an idler and I am the head of a big business. My worries are incredible. I'm just irritable and out of sorts. What I want is a good night's sleep."

"For a moment there was a look on Trent's face which Grant thought expressed pleasure. But it passed quickly. Grant felt relieved that he was conquering his panic fears. There had been a moment when he nearly blurted the whole thing to the man facing him.

Downstairs, Trent sought out Swithin Weld.

"I gave him a chance to tell me but he shut up like a clam."

"I'm glad," Weld retorted, "that sort doesn't deserve any chance. I prefer this way of getting a confession."

From the window to which he crept timorously, Payson Grant saw the two men set out on their quest. For a time he was alone in this big silent camp, at the mercy of any stronger than he. It was difficult to resist the temptation to extinguish his light. He hoped the two men would not wander too far afield. Almost he wished he had gone with them. Here, he was in a trap. In fact, the trap was baited with Payson Grant.

The oriental drug of which a medical friend had warned him was close at hand. He gulped down one of the pellets eagerly. Anything would be better than this fear which had begun to fold him about. The drug had not been recommended as a soporific; in combination with a sleeping tablet it had never failed to give him a dream-filled slumber from which ordinary disturbances could not awaken him.

Tonight it lost its potency. He awoke with great suddenness, and in full possession of his senses, at two o'clock. Subconsciously, this hour had been impressed upon him. His sleep had lasted but half an hour.

Although his first impression had been one of absolute quiet, he could hear, as his ears grew accustomed to it, that the silence was broken continually by innumerable little sounds. Boards creaked. Insects called shrilly. Even the winds in the trees seemed to menace him. His hand crept underneath his pillow for the automatic pistol. He was still in his dressing gown; he slipped the weapon into his pocket and sat up in bed.

By this time the drug had lost its hold. He was more frightened than he had been before he took it. His fears were like the nightmare terrors of a nervous child. He was certain that somewhere in this deserted house there were deadly forces concentrating themselves on his destruction. There was no safety for him anywhere.

His ears were now attuned to catch disturbing sounds with a peculiar distinctness. The rattling of the door knob grew louder to his disturbed senses. He could not keep his eyes from it. He believed it could not turn as it did without some human agency. As he gazed at it in pitiable horror, he heard, with great clearness now, footsteps advancing along the corridor to his door. It was only now that he knew those other more vague sounds had not been man-made. The steps approaching had in them nothing of furtiveness or stealth. He snatched up a book and sought to compose his drawn features. He believed Trent was coming and he did not wish to show fear after his brave words.

He did not even glance up immediately from his book. He yawned elaborately and then raised his eyes.

Frank Sutton stood at the foot of the bed.

The look that he bent upon his betrayer seemed to have so little anger in it that Grant was amazed. The storm of passionate vengeance which he had anticipated was wanting. There was a look, instead, of a stern and settled purpose which frightened Grant more than any other attitude could have done.

"My note said I would see you on the seventeenth," Sutton remarked. "It was an error and should have read the twenty-seventh."

"What do you want" Grant nerved himself to ask.

"First of all a talk. Get out of bed and sit here." He pointed to a chair at one side of the open fireplace. When Grant had dragged himself across the room Sutton, after lighting a cigarette, sank into the chair opposite.

"When I last saw you," he began, "I swore to kill you on sight. I thought then that nothing else would satisfy me. Three years of prison made me see things in another light. Your death would not satisfy me now. There must be a different punishment from that."

Grant tried to speak but there was a tightness in his throat which strangled the words he wanted to utter. Assuredly, this calm, quiet man frightened him more than he could have believed possible.

"You are going to taste the same bitterness that I experienced. You do not yet realize what that means. In the first place you will be stripped of fortune and reputation even as I was. Day after day you will sit in a court and hear all the many little deeds of your life unfolded. You will see your friends avert their eyes from you. Those who believed in you will look with scorn. And in the end—like me—you will lose Natica. Is not that better for me than if I were to take your life, here and now?"

Payson Grant was oppressed with the inevitability of this fate. It seemed almost as though Sutton had the gift of prophecy. His weary head drooped on his chest. There seemed no way of escape. He was sinking in deep and turbulent waters. Desperately he fough, for something to say to this stern and silent man.

Peking Child Beggars Bane of Foreigners

Even Cairo and Naples cannot compare with Peking in the number and persistence of the professional beggars who swarm upon the streets and annoy strangers with their supplications. In Peking the casual tourist will do well to buy a "small dime" coppers before he goes out—that means twenty-eight coppers—and to distribute a copper here and a copper there. It purchases immunity from annoyance.

The permanent resident obtains immunity only by being as "hard-hearted" as the Chinese themselves—and never giving. If one lives in Peking for a time and maintains a 'ricksha boy and several servants, one's doorway will not be bothered, for the magical words "ta boo gay"—"He nothing gives"—spread rapidly. Recently the doorways of the foreign hotels were beseiged by swarms of ragged little girls of eight or ten years, each carrying a tiny, wailing, naked infant, supposedly their starving little sisters. As a matter of fact, these little begging girls are all hired, as are also the infants, by fat, sleek men who control this beggar ring and prey upon ignorant foreigners.

Czechoslovakia

Czechoslovak Maidens in Native Costume.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

CZECHOSLOVAKIA is an excellent example of a cultured nation which, owing to the overthrow of the old order in Europe, is now a free land.

It was on American soil that the plans of freedom of this nation were developed; its Declaration of Independence was written in an American city and shortened to meet the space limitations of an American newspaper. In success or failure, this keyland to central Europe cannot but be of interest to America and to the world.

Prague, the capital of the new republic, is one of the most interesting of the world's cities, and to one who comes to know its charms it has a peculiar appeal. The view of the ancient palace of Hardcany from the opposite end of the old Charles bridge is one long to be remembered.

The favorite view of Prague is from a hideous view-tower on the Petrin. From its top one can see the Bohemian forest on the Bavarian frontier and the other low ranges that inclose the great plain of Bohemia; but as a vantage point for viewing Prague, it is distinctly disappointing. Even the high spires of the St. Vitus Cathedral cut the hillside instead of the skyline, and the rolling city, caught in the boomerang curve of the river, seems much flatter than it really is.

A better point of vantage is the view-tower in the grounds of the early Eighteenth century Schonborn palace, now the residence of the American minister to Czechoslovakia. From that lower level the ragged skyline, which is Prague's chief charm, is visible and one gets a more intimate view of the spots where history has been made in many a hard-fought fight.

When the sun begins to set behind the Petrin, the saw-toothed towers of the cathedral, to which one's gaze so frequently returns, stand out dull brown and edged with darker tones against a hazy sky; but the dun brown buildings beyond the romantic towers of the historic bridge of Prague respond to the farewell kiss of the setting sun as do the towering columns of Baalbek, glowing with a mellow light. Then one suddenly realizes why the Bohemians call their beloved capital Zlata Praha, Golden Prague.

Arcades of Prague.

Prague is essentially a city for the pedestrian wanderer. A sight-seeing bus or a lorgnette would chase away the charm. Formal sights are disappointing except to experts, but to him who likes to loiter among medieval scenes, taking pleasure in watching this old lady whose worn umbrella shelters a slender stock of fruit, or contemplating with leisurely delight the life that surges through the covered passageways lining the cobbled streets of the Mala Strana, few cities so intrigue one's interest.

The Czechs who emigrate to Cleveland ought to feel at home there, for Prague is also a city of arcades. Some of these are low-arched passages that remind one of an Old Chester whose cubist lines are bent to graceful curves, or of the dimly-lighted "souks" that usher one into the caravansaries of Bokhara.

Others are great open halls that cut their way through massive modern blocks, their plate-glass walls placarded with posters and pierced by entrances to moving-picture shows and cabarets that love the dark, with hairdressers' windows full of cheap perfume at high prices, and with a postage-stamp dealer or two. No modern arcade in Prague would be complete without a postage-stamp dealer whose windows are pock-marked with treasures for the philatelist.

The native costumes of Czechoslovakia are a never-ending delight. Although each town has its peculiar style, in each there are such differences as are due to individual tastes. In the small towns women are nonconformists in matters of dress.

The men run more or less to type, with high boots, brightly polished but dusty to the ankles, wide white trousers, and a shirt eloquent of wifely toil beside some sylvan stream and nicely embroidered at the wrist and throat with delicate designs which do not suggest the horny-handedness of the women who produced them.

A panel of dark material hangs down in front and a gay sash of red and black, much like the Filipino gee string, hangs to the ankles. The vest is thickly braided and has innumerable frongs.

Colorful Garb of the Women.

But the women run the whole gamut of color, and when one sees them massed in the mellow light of a great church interior he looks to see what stained-glass window or prism-decorated chandelier has thrown its varicolored beams across the multitude.

The women's shoes are stout, high-cut, and topped with patent leather trimmed to a scalloped edge, so that they give a strangely graceful appearance to the stocky legs of the peasant women. Their stockings are for protection as well as for display, some with small square designs knitted into the dull black.

The skirts are plain black, with no trimming except a line of fine embroidery, worn, like the attractive smocking of the Chinese coolie apron, just below the waist, but they are very heavily plaited and are hung above a surprising number of lace-trimmed petticoats.

The waist-length jacket may be quite plain except for an applique design of hand-made lace around the bust and on the sleeve from elbow to wrist, but the head-dress and apron are as gay in tone as the obi of a Japanese doll of twelve.

Some of the Slavic head shawls, which give a Madonna oval to the broadest of peasant features, are neat white cotton with red polka dots or a dark gray design. Others are shimmery white silk, embroidered with light tints or heavy designs.

There is something about manifold plaits that is as redolent of romance as the speech of a Parisienne, and, when a fringed scarf is added, the shapelessness of the peasant and the high cheek-bones of the Slavic face cannot rob the wearer of a charm which in the half light of evening or from a moderate distance makes mere man want to burst into some sentimental ballad.

And when a few hundred gaily-colored aprons—bright green, changeable to gold, yellow with a silver overlight, pink, blue, cerise—are displayed in one moving picture, it matters not that the wearers lack the classic beauty of a Venus or the form of a Juno. It is a very charming scene.

Commerce is working havoc with the lovely peasant costumes of Czechoslovakia, for analine dyes are being substituted for vegetable colors which were not only much softer when new, but which fade into mellow tones no chemical dye can duplicate.

Machine Work Ruining Art.

Factories are calling the women from the farms, where they utilized the winter months in working out the designs traced by the village designer or in evolving their own. Thus, gradually the arts of the past are being lost.

City girls and foreigners, whose sense of art is inferior, have conceived a great liking for these peasant costumes, with the result that there is a market, not only for the product of months or years of loving labor, but also for hurried work, devoid of imagination and machine-like in its mediocrity. The value of a fine costume runs into thousands of crowns, and cheaper ones have to be supplied. The result is deplorable.

Not only are hideous color combinations displayed and machine-made ribbons used in place of better ornament, but the costumes, donned by those to whom they are only a type of fancy dress, lack the dignity which is never lacking when they are used by the real peasant.

Names are a continual plague to the traveler in Czechoslovakia who learned his geography before the World war. When the Czech divorce from Austria was recognized by the great powers, the first thing the little country did was to go back to its maiden names. This, of course, has given great joy to the people; but why a trade name as valuable as Karlsbad should be sacrified for Karlovy Vary is a little hard even for Czechoslovakia's sincerest admirers to understand. It is bad enough having to drink the water without having to learn a name like that, and one is quite surprised to know that Marienbad is just as attractive under the impossible cognomen of Mariansky Lazne as it was under its German name.

DR. CALDWELL'S THREE RULES

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not habit forming.

The Doctor never did approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. Get a bottle today, at any drugstore and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open. For a free trial bottle, just write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. "Yes," came the dismal reply.

"Quite probably," came in even more mournful tones. "But this girl didn't say no—she said 'rats!'"—Stray Stories.

Soviets Grant Mercy to Afflicted Sire

Leningrad.—Sometimes Soviet justice is merciful. A case has just been decided by the Leningrad provincial court in which a father confessed to the murder of his two-year-old-son. The father, an aviation pilot named Orlovsky, said he had killed his boy because the boy was incurably insane, suffering from water on the brain. Orlovsky produced evidence, and his wife supported him, of his own unbearable suffering at the tragedy, and proved that he had consulted many doctors who pronounced the case helpless.

Orlovsky was sentenced to only six months imprisonment by the court, and this sentence was then commuted to a severe reprimand.

PRISONER IN GRIEF ONLY FOR HIMSELF

New Britain, Conn.—Making it clear to police that he was sorry, not for his victims but for the predicament in which he has placed himself, Samuel Weiss, thirty-two years old, confessed to putting cyanide in several bottles of home brew from which his brother, John, and two neighbors, John Stein and John Stehr, died after drinking.

Weiss' confession was as heartless as his action. He told the police he was in love with his sister-in-law and had long ago determined to do away with his brother. He regretted that the poison had worked so quickly, telling police he had hoped his brother would "die like a dog in the yard."

After his confession, which came after five detective sergeants had questioned him throughout the night, Weiss began to sob, but he quickly assured his questioners that his tears were not for his brother or the dead neighbors, but for himself, as he feared he would be hanged.

Weiss has a wife and family in Czechoslovakia, but he said he promptly forgot them when he went to live with his brother and sister-in-law, who also is being held as a possible accessory before the fact. His affair with Mrs. Weiss came to a climax last Easter, he said, when the woman took $500 from her husband's savings and eloped to Boston with him. Last July she returned to her husband and when Weiss reappeared she rejected his advances. His confession did not implicate the woman.

Trail of Death Left by Murderous "Chink"

Fairfield, Calif.—Ten Chinese were slain and five seriously wounded when Loy Yeung, a cook, ran amuck on the Wong Gee ranch, five miles from here.

Using a rifle and a hatchet he killed Wong Gee, his wife and three small children. Five others, including Wong Hueng, brother of the ranch owner, fell dead under the maniac's weapons and five others, ranch workmen, were wounded.

Loy Yeung then fled in an automobile owned by one of his victims.

The attack came without warning, survivors said. The cook had been employed on the ranch for the last three months. He descended upon the Wong family brandishing his hatchet and killed the mother, father and three children, decapitating the youngest infant as it lay in the mother's arms.

Sailor Makes "Hades" His Last Destination

New York.—Benjamin Shor, eighteen, able seaman, recently made his last entry in his log. In a black leather looseleaf notebook containing neatly typewritten pages, listing ports he had visited and ships on which he had sailed, was written shakily, in pale blue ink:

"Sailing for Hades on the S. S. Cyanide. Benjamin Shor."

He then took a fatal dose of potassium cyanide.

Evidence That Sailor Was Victim of Shark

Philadelphia.—A human thumb and a coat sleeve were found in a 7-foot shark captured far out at sea by Charles McNulty, of Philadelphia. The shark was caught with a very heavy hook and line and five pistol shots were required to kill it. The thumb had been cleanly severed and the sleeve was part of a uniform common to the merchant marine.

SEASONABLE FOODS

As fresh oysters are now to be found in the markets try the following:

Oysters in Cucumber Cups.—Cut large cucumbers into quarters crosswise, remove the peel lengthwise in narrow strips, leaving strips of the green peeling to give a striped effect. Scoop out each section for a cup to hold the oysters. Cucumbers that have too hard seeds to use for slicing may be used for these cups. Fill with chilled raw oysters and pour over a snappy cocktail sauce, using a little horseradish, catsup and a dash of cayenne and salt. Any fish with a tartar sauce may be served in this manner.

Chicken a la Reine.—With a small amount of chicken left from a previous meal, this appetizing dish may be made:

Cream two tablespoonfuls of butter add the yolks of three hard cooked eggs rubbed to a paste. Soak one-fourth cupful of cracker crumbs in the same amount of milk and add to the egg mixture. Pour on gradually one cupful of chicken stock, then add one cupful of minced chicken. Season with salt, paprika and celery salt Serve on toast.

Mock Venison.—Purchase a five pound leg of lamb. Wipe it with a damp cloth and lay in a dish of vinegar, six cloves, one onion sliced, one-fourth teaspoonful of ginger and ten peppercorns. Allow the lamb to remain in the vinegar one day, then turn and leave for a second day. Remove, cover with seasoned flour and roast as usual. A quart of not too strong vinegar will be sufficient.

Thousand Island Dressing.—One may prepare any kind of combination such as chopped onion, cheese, hard cooked egg, green and red pepper, bits of tomato, tomato catsup, chopped capers, pickles—sweet or sour—with salt and paprika and have (with a well prepared mayonnaise) a different salad dressing for every day of the week.

Mutton en Casserole.—Take a two inch slice of a leg of yearling mutton. Remove the bone and fill the cavity with onion or strips of celery. Dredge with flour, salt and pepper. Place in a casserole a rich gravy of one cupful of brown stock, one-half cupful of currant jelly, a dozen chopped olives, six peppercorns, three whole cloves and one tablespoonful of lemon juice. Thicken when boiling with one tablespoonful of flour mixed to a paste with a little water. Lay into this the round of mutton, spread the top with beef marrow, cover the casserole and bake one hour and a half in a moderate oven.

Ways With Bananas.

"In our menus, just as in our lives, the truest pleasures come when we see a familiar thing in a new setting only to discover that it has unsuspected delights never before realized." These recipes reveal a familiar fruit, the ubiquitous banana, used in delightful variation from cocktail to dessert:

Banana Whip.—Mash and cook three bananas in a double boiler with one-third of a cupful of sugar, one tablespoonful of lemon juice until scalded. Add a few drops of vanilla and a pinch of salt, cool. Whip one cupful of cream until firm, add the bananas gradually and set aside to chill. Pile high in sherbet glasses, sprinkle with pistachio nuts and serve.

Banana Cake.—Cream one-half cupful of sugar and two cupfuls of pastry flour sifted with three level teaspoonfuls of baking powder, and a pinch of salt; two-thirds of a cupful of milk is added alternately with the flour. Beat well, add the beaten whites of three eggs folded in lightly. Bake in layer tins. Cover the layers with sliced bananas and lightly sweetened whipped cream. Use the same for the top of the cake. Chill before serving.

Three Fruit Cup.—Slice three oranges, three bananas and dice three cupfuls of pineapple. Arrange the fruit in layers in sherbet glasses. Whip cream very stiff, sweeten and flavor lightly with almond, cover top of cups with the cream and sprinkle shredded almonds over the top.

Fruit Sherbet.—Take three lemons, three oranges and three bananas, all put through a sieve, add three cupfuls of sugar, five cupfuls of rich milk, and one cupful of cream. Freeze and serve in sherbet glasses.

Fruit Ice. — Rub three bananas through a sieve, add the strained juice of three oranges and three lemons and two cupfuls of sugar. Let stand with three cupfuls of water and a pinch of salt until the sugar is dissolved, then freeze as usual.

WILD WOLVES

"It's more fun to have enemies than not to know the joys of being wild," said the Gray Wolf.

"Children aren't like wolves, not like wolves in the least.

"They'd never hunt for sheep at night, they'd never like the taste of young sheep, uncooked."

"Perhaps they're glad they're not like us," said the other wolves.

"Perhaps," said the Gray Wolf. "But the idea seems rather funny, very funny, in fact."

"All depends on the point of view," said the other wolves.

"I'm glad I've a wolf's point of view," said the Gray Wolf.

"My family is not always so daring as once they were," continued the Gray Wolf.

"That is—the different members of my family.

"We're still brave! Oh, if an enemy goes for one of us, how we can fight!

"We don't run away. We fight and do our best to win.

"But since so many people have carried guns with them in the countries where we were, we have been a little more careful.

"We haven't taken any foolish chances. We've known that guns were dangerous, very, very dangerous.

"And yet when brought to bay, or brought right up to the point where it was up to us to fight or meekly give in, we've fought, we have."

"Ah," said the other wolves, "it seems to us that you are brave."

"You're only careful and you only hide when it is wise to do so.

"It would be foolish to take chances No sensible animal would do that."

"I'm glad you all agree with me," said the Gray Wolf. "And I like to talk of the things my family do and of the things I did when I was free.

"We're Still Brave."

and of our splendid behavior when danger was near."

"And we like to hear of such things," said the other wolves.

"We love to hear of the wild life, for wolves are wild, ah yes, they're wild."

"Wild wolves, how sweet the words sound," said the Gray Wolf, growling in none too sweet a voice.

"Ah yes," he continued, "it really isn't fair to ourselves to say we aren't as brave as once we were.

"Since men have done so much hunting with guns we have not had the even chance that once we had.

"We haven't anything such as a gun with which to protect ourselves.

"We must be more careful, much more careful, and so neither I, nor anyone, should really say we are less brave.

"The joys of being wild are very great, though, very great indeed."

And the other wolves looked as though they thought the same.

Fig Tree's Lesson

Once upon a time, there was a house surrounded by a pretty yard in which grew a large fig tree. A family moved into this place, and the mistress soon saw that it was the playground of many beautiful birds, who visited it daily.

When the figs began to ripen, the very air resounded with music. The mistress of the house made herself very unhappy by picturing the birds as greedily eating all of them and leaving none for her, and one morning she went out to the tree and saw that one of the first and finest of the figs, which she had wanted for her own, had ripened and the birds had eaten a hearty meal from it.

At first she was very resentful; but when she calmly thought the situation over, she came to the conclusion that the figs belonged by right as much to the birds as they did to her, and she was content to share the fruit with them. Day by day so many figs ripened that besides what the birds ate, she had more than she could use. She made preserves and then had still more which she gave to a neighbor, and was always thankful for this lesson from the fig tree.

A Good "Catch"

Ask a friend if he or she can write the words one hundred in one letter. If they find they cannot, all you have to do is to put down the letter C, which is the Roman figure for a hundred.

So He Did

Aunt—That was greedy of you, Billy, to eat your little sister's slice of pie.

Nephew—But mother told me I was always to take her part.

How many people you know end their colds with Bayer Aspirin! And how often you've heard of its prompt relief of sore throat or tonsilitis. No wonder millions take it for colds, neuralgia, rheumatism; and the aches and pains that go with them. The wonder is that anyone still worries through a winter without these tablets! They relieve quickly, yet have no effect whatever on the heart. Friends have told you Bayer Aspirin is marvelous; doctors have declared it harmless. Every druggist has it, with proven directions. Why not put it to the test?

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

BAYER ASPIRIN

His Range of Vision Affected by Silver

A parable taken from a Jewish folk-play runs as follows:

"One day a certain old rich man, of a miserly disposition, visited a rabbi who took the rich man by the hand and led him to a window. 'Look out there,' he said. And the rich man looked out into the street.

"'What do you see?' asked the rabbi.

"'I see men, and women, and little children,' answered the rich man.

"Again the rabbi took him by the hand, and this time led him to a mirror. 'What do you see now?'

"'Now I see myself,' the rich man replied.

"Then the rabbi said: 'Behold—in the window there is glass, and in the mirror there is glass. But the glass of the mirror is covered with a little silver, and no sooner is the silver added than you cease to see others but see only yourself.'"

For the Baby

To protect the baby from diaper rash, diapers should always be washed in a solution of 20 Mule Team Borax. Borax neutralizes the acids, and removes all traces of soap which may irritate the baby's tender skin.—Adv.

New Fire Extinguisher

Two Ohio chemists were as much mystified as anybody recently when they discovered that solutions containing salts of alkali metals, such as potassium, can put out a fire three times as rapidly as standard soda acid types of extinguishers. Their apparatus, says Popular Science Monthly, puts out a blaze in 12 seconds. The best previous record was from 35 to 45 seconds.

Living River Dredge

The hippopotamus tears up and eats the great plants and weeds that grow in rivers, thus acting as one of nature's great dredges.

Unique Flag

A flag made up of stars and stripes owned by Mrs. Robert D. Rose, of Portland, Maine, is unusual in that the stars are arranged on the blue field so as to form the letters F-R-E-E. The word is composed of 35 stars, while the 36 is larger and placed below. This flag was carried by George Damry in a parade of school children on the Fourth of July, 1865.

LEONARD EAR OIL

Improves Hearing, Relieves Head Noises

Nine out of ten cases of DEAFNESS and HEAD NOISES are caused by catarrhal mucus (matter) in the Eustachian Tubes, which connects the nose and the ears. Leonard Ear Oil removes the MUCUS, OPENS UP THE TUBE and THE OTHER AIR PASSAGES OF THE HEAD, and the result is improved Hearing and relief from Head Noises. It is not put in the ears, but is "INSERTED IN THE NOSTRILS" and "RUBBED in BACK OF THE EARS" and special instructions by a noted Ear Specialist in each package for different kinds of Deafness and Head Noises tell you exactly how to take care of your own case. Leonard Ear Oil is not an experiment but has had a very large and constantly growing sale since 1907, and every year it has relieved thousands of people of their Ear Troubles. No matter how long you have been deaf, nor how deaf you are, or what caused your deafness, or how many things you have already tried which have failed to relieve you, Leonard Ear Oil has relieved many such cases as your own. Why not you? The price is $1.25. Leonard Ear Oil is for sale at Druggists, or direct postpaid upon receipt of price.
